Industry: Internet & Online

Bowie, Maryland – United States – October 6, 2009 – Lovetropolis.com, an online dating service owned by The Lombard Company, Inc. in Bowie, Maryland, announced today that they have added two new features to their dating website that was launched in February of this year. The first is a new Asian dating service, specifically for Asians and those with an interest in dating Asians. The second is a new webcam dating feature that allows users to communicate with each other live instead of relying on instant messaging and emails.

“You can't really get a feel for what someone is all about if you just see a picture and read a profile,” said a company spokesperson. “Being able to communicate with during a webcam date gives you more of a sense of being in the room with a person. It definitely raises the comfort level between two people before they actually meet in person. Spending some time to get to know someone in the virtual world today makes that meeting in the real world far less awkward and much safer.”

The webcam dating feature is added to Lovetropolis.com’s already significant array of user tools which includes traditional instant messaging, internal secure email, apps to customize profile pages, and capability to blog and upload YouTube videos. The design is very similar to the larger social networking programs used by Facebook, MySpace, LinkedIn and others, making Lovetropolis.com one of the most cutting edge online dating websites in the industry.

“Our development teams have utilized technology to create something that is completely interactive and fun to use,” our spokesperson told us. “The only mystery to us right now is why others in this industry don't use a social network platform. Our hybrid formulation provides everything a user needs to have an enjoyable and safe dating experience along with social connectivity.”

The addition of the webcam dating feature is, surprisingly, fairly unique among online dating sites. Asian dating sites are common, but there aren't any online right now that have the array of tools that Lovetropolis.com is offering. In addition to Asian dating, they are also now offering a Latin Dating, Black Dating, Christian Dating, and Jewish Dating service.
