CouponChief.com, a website for finding Online coupons and turning a profit, offers an extra service to its users: help keeping a New Year's resolution. For those vowing to save money in 2010, we eliminate the frustrating task of sifting through worthless discount offerings by providing a reliable platform for timely bargains and evergreen savings. In a tough economic climate, we also reward contributors who help us make CouponChief.com indispensable for other online shoppers looking to cut costs but not quality.

December, 2009 - "I'm going to lose weight this year." "I will stop smoking." "I will learn to play the trumpet." New Year's resolutions come and go, but for those who pledge to save money in 2010, CouponChief.com can help this particular resolution last longer than to Valentine's Day. As comparison-shopping becomes crucial to consumers looking to stretch their dollars, the ability to easily find valid online coupons plays an ever-growing role in shopping decisions.

CouponChief.Com helps those seeking bargains by providing valid online coupon codes for a wide array of top retailers. How often do you cut, paste and print online coupons only to find they are out of date, or subject to an endless list of restrictions? CouponChief.com removes coupon codes that are expired and ensures that each online coupon found on its site is operational and of value.

The thousands of stores represented at any time can range from Anthropologie to Gap to Oakley to Talbots to ZGallerie. Users can browse by popular tags, coupons and stores, or simply search by store name. CouponChief.com also offers an email newsletter and a blog that touts new additions to the site.

There is no cost or membership required to use CouponChief.com. Users can upload coupons, plus rate and leave comments on existing online coupons. Signing up for an account offers additional benefits: Members can download a widget for their own site or blog and be alerted when a particular store has a coupon code added to the site.

The site also provides a way for members to make money while contributing to the site's success. The Pays-2-Share program works like this: You enroll in the program by registering. Then go ahead and hunt down coupon codes from top-shelf retailers. Each time a particular coupon is redeemed, or the coupon code used, the "finder" or "contributor" receives 2% of the purchase from participating stores. After a short holding period, the monies are transferred via check or by PayPal.

How many websites allow for users to save money on purchases and turn a profit at the same time? Perhaps your New Year's resolution should be to save money while making money.

CouponChief.com: There are plenty of websites that offer online Coupon codes, but none feature the range of stores that CouponChief.com does, nor do they ensure that their coupon codes are valid. We also invite our users to participate, which allows them to contribute coupons they find and make money when others uses those coupons.
