HolidayCity.com - Celebrate summer in Barcelona with theatre, music and dance performances at the Teatre Grec from 13th June to 1st August 2010. First held in 1976 with the aim to revitalize and refresh the local dramatic arts scene, Teatre Grec offers spectators the opportunity to truly appreciate the many art forms through performances by renowned artists from far and wide. Barcelona hotels can expect higher occupancy as visitors converge in the city to celebrate art.

Teatre Grec, with its Greek-style amphitheatre, would be the main venue for the events and performances throughout the festival together with other venues around Barcelona. For this year, Frederic Amat, an artist that has been involved in world of theatre for many years, was commissioned to design the festival image. Visitors would be enthralled by his work that infused both the Mediterranean and Japanese elements. One of the attractions of this year's festival is performances produced together with a Japanese theatre company. Music fans can also look forward to Sónar International Festival of Advanced Music and Multimedia Art that would be launched at Teatre Grec.
