Released on: March 01, 2010, 8:00 am

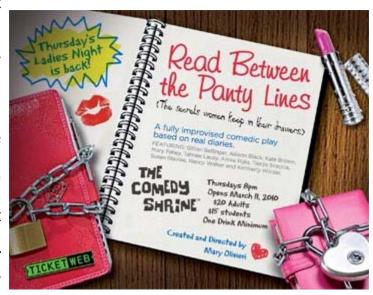

Author: Emily Ganden Industry: Entertainment

(March 01, 2010) – Women in the Arts Month has another reason to celebrate with the hilarious premiere of – Read Between the Panty Lines: The secrets women keep in their drawers. Created and Directed by Mary Olivieri, Comedy Shrine main-stager, creator of the hugely successful "The Spew", and veteran of stage and screen, brings together a cast of brilliantly trained improvisational actresses from in and around Chicago for a performance you won't soon forget.

Read Between the Panty Lines is based audience suggestions and real diary entries from women all over world. For every young girl who keeps a diary, to every woman who did, (and had to relive it when she found them in box in her that basement,) Panty Lines is at once a poignant parody of the painful years of growing up a girl, and a side-splitting exploration of the life-changing moments that as grown women, we'd just as soon forget.

Celebrate Women in the Arts month with The Comedy Shrine's Ladies Night - it's a perfect night - for Mom's and their daughters and for the young girls that still live in us all.

Read Between the Panty Lines: The secrets women keep in their drawers opens Thursday, March 11, 2010 and will run every Thursday in March and April. Curtain 8p.m. Tickets are $20 for Adults, $15 for Students. Contact The Comedy Shrine at 630.355.2844 for more information today!
