Boston rockers Aerosmith will take to the stage at London's 02 Arena on 15 June 2010 as part of their 'Cocked, Locked and Ready to Rock' tour.

The notorious rockers will hit the road this summer to play their first European shows in three years. Tickets to the 02 Arena gig are expected to sell out in record time, as the band whip up a storm of rock nostalgia with anthems like 'Love In An Elevator'.

The 'Cocked, Locked and Ready to Rock' tour was announced in February 2010. Kicking off in Sweden and including ten dates in the UK, the tour then moves on to Romania, Greece, Holland, Belgium, Spain, France, Czech Republic and finally, Venice in Italy on 3rd July.

Following high-profile squabbles, rumours of splits, back injuries and treatment for drug addiction, the entire line-up - Steve, Joe, Tom, Brad and Joey - will show a united front as they revive their classic brand of bare-chested, big-haired rock.

Flamboyant front-man Steve Tyler said in a video announcement; "We're coming your way and rockin' your world. Look out baby, because here we come again!"
