

Blair Rewards Membership Saves Money Making The Program Beneficial For All Members

The logo for Blair Rewards Cancellations. It features the word "BLAIR" in a small, blue, serif font at the top left. Below it, the word "REWARDS" is written in a larger, blue, serif font. To the right of "REWARDS", the word "Cancellations" is written in a smaller, blue, sans-serif font. The entire logo is set against a light blue background with a subtle vertical striped pattern.

Released on: April 04, 2010, 6:16 pm

Author: blairrewards.com

Industry: Consumer Services

I love to travel. I also love to save money. Until I joined Blair Rewards, though, I didn't have the opportunity to feed both of these loves at the same time. I signed up for my Blair Rewards membership about a year ago, and since then I have taken three vacations. With each one, I used my Blair Rewards program benefits during every aspect of the trip, from the moment I began planning where I would go and what I would do, to my last day away. I can't imagine taking a vacation now without Blair Rewards by my side.

Signing up for Blair Rewards membership was easy, and during the 30-day trial period I used my Blair Rewards program benefits on a variety of products and services. I decided to continue my membership and was more than happy when Blair Rewards began to automatically charge my credit card for its low monthly membership fee. It wasn't until I learned how to use the travel benefits within my Blair Rewards membership, though, that I truly appreciated its value.

The first vacation I took using Blair Rewards savings opportunities was a spa getaway. From the moment I had the idea to get pampered at a spa, Blair Rewards program VIP Travel Center was there to help. My travel advisor helped me pick the perfect resort for myself and a handful of friends, getting us the best deal on packages. She even suggested nearby restaurants to try if we got sick of the spa cuisine.

My next vacation was one with the family to a resort near a theme park. Once again, my travel advisor helped me plan every aspect of the vacation, and I was even able to use my Blair Rewards membership to receive almost 50 percent off of park admission. This particular Blair Rewards perk allowed us to not only get into the park, but to eat while we were there. My membership also rewarded me with 10 percent off of the booking price of our package.

The last vacation I took was to see my parents back east. Since they have such a small place for their retirement years, I always stay in a nearby hotel. The Blair Rewards program saved me almost 50 percent off of my room, and I even received a complimentary upgrade for being a blair rewards member.

I told all of this to a friend recently, one who was thinking of canceling her Blair Rewards membership. She hadn't realized how much money she could save on travel with the program, and changed her mind right then about canceling. If she ever did want to cancel her Blair Rewards membership, though, it would be as easy as making a phone call or filling out a cancellation form online. After I shared my travel tips with her, I can't imagine she will be doing that any time soon.

Since Bobby Blair signed up for his blair rewards membership, he has used it to receive significant savings in all areas of his life. From everyday purchases to big-ticket items such as vacation packages, he always checks to see if his membership can score him a better deal. Through the blair rewards program, he was able to take three vacations last year, instead of his typical two. That alone was worth the monthly membership fee.

~~~~~

Press release distributed via EPR Network (<http://express-press-release.net/submit-press-release.php>)